

Farah Hanley

Deputy Director, Central Operations Michigan Department of Health and Human Services

Farah Hanley is deputy director for Central Operations for the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services.

In that role, she oversees the agency's budget, purchasing, accounting, human resources, Bureau of Organizational Services and recoupment.

Previously, she served as senior deputy director of Operations Administration for the former Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH), where she oversaw all aspects of the MDCH budget, accounting, purchasing and audit areas.

Hanley also has served as manager of the MDCH budget within the State Budget Office at the Department of Technology, Management and Budget. In this role, she assisted MDCH in key decisions, including implementing the Healthy Michigan Plan. In addition, she served as a federal health and budget specialist within the State Budget Office.

Prior to that, she served as a senior Medicaid consultant for The Medstat Group, now known as Truven Health, where she developed analytic methods and supported policy analyses for state Medicaid programs across the country.
